

Joseph Powell IV

Military Journals:

Journal 1:

The first day of class, rather the second week, we discussed the structure of the army. We started from the Fire Squad up to the Corps including the men who are overseers of that group. We went over the Army's Mission and what makes the Guard different being that they're boots on ground. We finally went over the Soldier's Creed and Warrior's Ethos. We then proceeded outside to learn how to line up and march.

Journal 2:

The second day of class we talked about the origin of the salute, proper form, and when to salute. It is not smart to salute when someone has arms full of stuff and you salute; they would have to return a salute. "You salute the rank not the soldier." We listened to the Army song that will play every morning and night. We ended class discussing ranks differences based on being enlisted or an officer.

Journal 3: